

MAURICE RIVER SLOOPS LEAVE FOR CELEBRATED COVES OF DELAWARE BAY

HAULS EXPECTED

The first oyster flotilla of the season left this morning from Maurice River, Bivalve and other of the little fishing villages in Southwest New Jersey for the celebrated coves of Delaware Bay.

The results of this expedition will be found tomorrow in virtually all the restaurants of Philadelphia and Pennsylvania. Although similar expeditions are made in the Chesapeake and on the Delaware side of the bay, oysters from these Jerseymen will, by reason of their freshness, be in demand tonight, find places on tables in Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia and Norfolk.

Only about a third of the oyster fleet, however, weighed anchor, because a majority of the sloop owners were inclined to think a one day's fishing would be a three days' layoff more or less impracticable. The reason of the layoff, of course, is nothing more serious than the closure of the markets over the holidays.

Successful Season Seen

According to all signs, the early summer opening has been more successful than in any recent year. The "teams" from the State oyster beds, which were the last fortnight, indicate that the catches will be more plentiful and greater in point of meat than in any recent year.

For about a week there has been an expectation of preparatory excitement in all the villages along the Maurice. All of the sloops have come out of their summer quarters in the coves and creeks and have anchored in the bay beyond the two great railroad wharves that flank the Maurice River.

The season has been hard at work and painting and provisioning them, and one boat after another has been run up on to the little drydock just beyond the wharf.

The prosperous season last year has resulted in the advent of a number of new sloops upon the river. These are equipped mostly with powerful oil engines, with propeller and sail come of them are capable of fifteen knots an hour. They cost from $8000 to $12,000.

Get Sloops Ready

There has also been a great bustle in the half-dozen blacksmith shops along each side of the river, where new knives and anchors, chains are being wrought and old ones repaired.

Until yesterday a few sloops had been making daily cruises to the bay, returning in the afternoon with sizable catches of "Cape May Salts." These bivalves of inferior size and succulence may be caught at any time and in all quantities. Save by a few small fisherman, they are pretty much neglected during the regular oyster season.

The average shipments from both wharves at Maurice River is about fifty crates a day, though during October and November, the height of the season, it has run to nearly ninety crates. Today's shipments, it is estimated, however, will be somewhat less than that.

George Bailey, the township constable and fisher, who has made but one arrest since assuming office, twelve years ago, has polished up his star as a warning to poachers.

SHOT TOWER CLOSES

Recreation for Children Occupied Time in Making Useful Articles

Shot Tower Recreation Center, Front and Carpenter streets, closed its summer season today preparatory to commencing fall and winter activities with an exhibit of articles made by the boys and girls during the summer months.

During July and August the children spent from three to four hours daily making various kinds of articles. Each child keeps whatever he makes. The girls, under the direction of Miss Mary McNamee and Miss Anna Tull, worked largely with red and raffia, making baskets, picture frames, hot plates, whisk-broom holders and similar pieces. The boys were more interested in carpentry and directed by I. Anton, they constructed toy airplanes, toy ships, cabinets, table lamps, match-box holders and many useful articles.

BIBLE READER IS ARRESTED

Awakens Residents at 5 A. M. by Declarations on Street

Residents in the vicinity of Fifty-second and Market streets were aroused shortly after 5 o'clock this morning by sounds that seemed to emanate from a Bible—all public debate.

Upon peering from their windows they saw a man walking rapidly up and down Fifty-second street reading loudly from a Bible. His exclamations were directed at frequent intervals by several bystanders.

Police of the Fifty-fifth and Pine streets station were notified of the disturbance and arrested Harry Rosenberg, who said he lived on West Third street, Chester.

He was committed to the Philadelphia Hospital for observation.
